Hille brothers dispute county claim on road

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has objected to a proposed fence across Harrison Road, but the landowner who wants to erect the fence says the property he wants to enclose is not Harrison Road at all.

The property is a part of the late Irene Hille's estate, jointly owned by four brothers, Frank Hille, Ben Hille, Irwin "Squeaky" Hille and Ralph Hille. All except Ralph Hille, who lives in Houma, La., are local residents.

The road, according to Board of Supervisors Attorney Gerald Gex, is a paved road running off Blue Meadow Road and stopping at a dead end on the Hille property.

The board contends that Frank Hille, who is managing the estate for his brothers and who has proposed putting up the fence with their consent, can not fence off the road because it is county property.

The Hille brothers contend that the county right-of-way is actually 15 feet away from the existing road, which they say continues straight for more than 1,500 feet into their property when it should have veered to the right.

Frank, Ben and Irwin Hille visited the property Tuesday to look at the spot where a fence was actually installed, then removed, in January 1982.

The road was paved "sometime after Hurricane Camille" when Mrs. Hille was still alive, but Frank Hille said no one has been able to tell him exactly when the work was completed.

The road was a shell road when the family bought the property in the mid-1940s and was named Harrison after its original owner. The Hilles purchased the road because it provided the only available access to their property, which is adjacent to what is now Jourdan River Isles.

"Lucien Raymond surveyed this place for us in 1963 and found out that the county put the road in the wrong place," Frank Hille said.

"Besides, this road was a private road when our family bought it and we never turned it over to the county, so it's not a county road."

He added that all of the plats he was able to obtain at the courthouse show that the road is actually 15 feet from the Hille property.

If Hille is correct, the actual road-site cuts across the front yards of at least three subdivision residents, and all three would have to move existing fences.

Frank Hille, as manager of the estate, contacted the supervisors Nov. 13 by letter, stating that he will install a fence on the estate property line by Dec. 13.

The property line crosses the road diagonally and a fence would cut off access for three residents, but the Hilles have no objection to putting a gate in the fence for those people.

Ben Hille said that the original buyers of the property on the south side of the road were not told when they purchased their lots that the front 18 feet of them were actually designated for a county road.

"They aren't here anymore. I don't know if these people realize their lots are 18 feet shorter than what they are actually using," he said.

Irwin Hille explained that the confusion over the road location probably occurred many years ago when the Hilles stopped using the last section of the original Harrison Road and instead created a dirt extension by continuing to drive straight instead of veering off to the right of the property line.

He said one day Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca sent a worker to pave the road and "he just kept going."

"I feel the county would have more of a right to buy the road if they needed it than to take it," Frank Hille said.

"If they just take it, they should pay back taxes on this much of our property," Irwin Hille added.

Gex disagrees. According to the attorney, if the county paid to pave the road and has maintained it as a public road for more than 10 years, the road becomes a county road through public usage.

The controversy has been going on for years.

"I have put up fence posts, concrete posts, a single strand of barbed wire, and they've taken it all down. I've known the county to dig up the posts, not just knock them down, and then they take the posts," Ben Hille said.

"I've got some axles buried around here somewhere," Irwin Hille added, looking at the ground as he walked along the edge of the road.

Grass grows now in the spots where the postholes were for the fence erected in 1982. The brothers said Travirca convinced their mother at the time to have the fence taken down.

The problem has surfaced again because Frank Hille is organizing the estate and the brothers are trying to decide what to do with the property.

He said he has not talked with Travirca about the matter.

ROAD DISPUTE—Brothers Irwin Hille, Ben Hille and Frank Hille discuss a copy of a plat showing the location of Harrison Road, which they contend shows a different location than the actual road. To their right is the area where the Hilles contend the road should be located. The road presently runs about 1,500 feet into the estate of their mother, the late Irene Hille. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

School board delays decision on proposed street extension

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District has asked for more information and a formal request concerning a proposed extension of Fifth Street.

The extension, 50 feet into the Bay Senior High practice field, had been informally submitted by Bay St. Louis Ward One Council Representative Lisa Coward and Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner.

Although the extension will serve subdivision being developed by private interests, it will be a dedicated public road maintained by the city, Board President Betty Diboll said.

The board has the options of accepting or turning down the request, providing the city with 20 feet of wooded area and requiring that the developer provide the additional 30 feet, or attempting to trade for property of equal value elsewhere.

The board approved a proposal by member Linda Penrose that the matter be taken under advisement and that a formal request and maps be presented at the next board meeting.

The next regular meeting is set for 7 p.m. Dec. 8.

In other business, the board:

- Took under advisement 28 proposed accreditation-related policies and comments on them received during a public hearing last week;

- Approved a request for delay of a student hearing; and
- Called an executive session to discuss personnel, particularly those at St. Rose Fifth Grade Center.

Scarbrough said the free dinner is underwritten through anonymous donations and will be served free with no strings attached to all who come to the restaurant that day.

Sheriff's office continues murder investigation

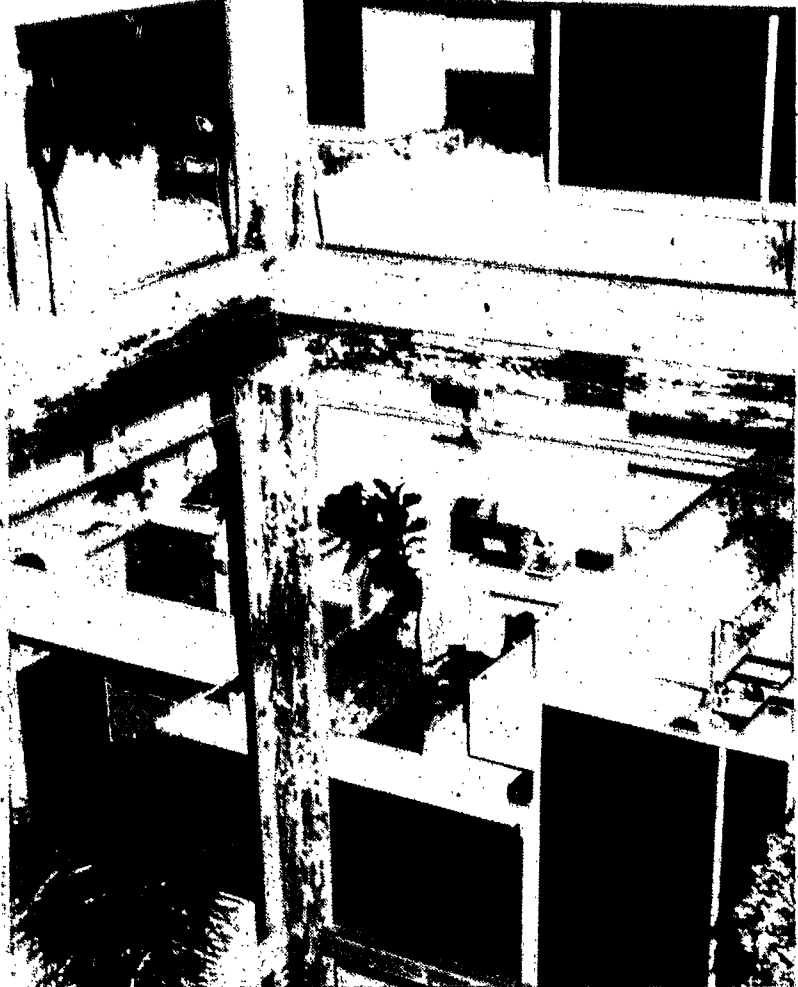

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The investigation of the shooting deaths of Jeannette Holden and Dorothy G. Tassin continues this week in full force.

Hancock County Investigator Delbert Seay said Saturday said the entire sheriff's department investigation force is working at "full steam" to find the killer of the two Hancock women.

Holden and Tassin were found dead from bullet wounds to the head Nov. 11 in a trailer parked adjacent to the Brass Anchor Lounge on US-90.

The investigation into the apparent robbery-murder was extended into several parishes of Louisiana last week where law enforcement officials were interviewing friends and acquaintances of the women.

Modification to create third test position

Construction has been initiated to modify the National Space Technology Laboratories' B-1 test position to create a third capability for static firing individual Space Shuttle main engines. The project will bring all four test positions into an active status for the first time.

The year-long modification effort will be the largest project NASA has undertaken at NSTL in more than a decade, since the mid-1970s when the three stands were modified from their Saturn V test configuration for the shuttle program.

The $5.2 million modification project commenced Nov. 1 and is scheduled for completion one year later. The first test on the new position is scheduled for November 1987.

The three test stands in NSTL's propulsion test complex contain four test positions, one each on A-1 and A-2 and two on the larger, dual stand. A-1 and A-2 are used to test main engines individually while the B-2 position is used for the three-engine Main Propulsion Test Article. The B-1 side of the dual stand was never activated for the Saturn V or shuttle programs.

The static tests conducted at NSTL simulate the sea level and altitude conditions in which a main engine must operate during the first eight and one-half minutes of a shuttle mission.

The modified B-1 test position will, as A-2 does, simulate operating conditions an engine encounters at an altitude of approximately 70,000 feet. The engine can also be throttled at various power levels during a static test.

As the second full-capability test position, B-1 will be used to certify flight engines and to accommodate the increased demand for testing development engines for certification and life-cycle analyses.

Originally NASA planned to modify the B-2 test position as a single engine capability for testing high pressure fuel and oxidizer pumps. The modification was to take place after the main propulsion test program was completed. The final cluster firing was scheduled for March 1986 to test the propulsion system at 109 percent power.

However, following the Challenger accident, that test has been postponed until fiscal year 1989 at the earliest. The B-2 position continues to be retained for main propulsion system testing should additional systems testing be required before the resumption of shuttle flights.

All existing materials and fabricated parts previously intended for the B-2 modification will be used for the B-1 project.

Pan Am World Services, NASA's facilities operating support contractor at NSTL, is responsible for managing the project's design and construction to ensure its completion in November 1987.

Sverdrup Corp. of St. Louis, Mo., has been selected to provide the design plans and specifications under contract to Pan Am. Utility Steel Baricators of Sildell, La., has been awarded the initial contract for fabrication and erection of structural steel components.

Project requirements continue to be jointly developed by NSTL, Marshall Space Flight Center's resident office and Rocketdyne, the manufacturer of the Space Shuttle main engine.

Waveland Players present Bus Stop

With entertaining performances by both veteran actors and newcomers to the stage, the recent Waveland Players production of Bus Stop was tops.

Certainly the most convincing performance was by Ed Craig as the very literate, but slightly tipsy professor. Active in community theater for more than 64 years, Craig had no trouble keeping the audience's attention.

Another shining star of the production was Perry Berens as the headstrong cowboy, Bo Decker. Although a newcomer to the stage, Berens appeared to have no trouble during the three act play.

Jennifer Cote, also making her acting debut, was perfect in her portrayal of the naive but intellectual diner waitress.

Adding to the authenticity of the Kansas City, Mo. setting, was the very believable accent by Grace, the somewhat brash owner of the diner where the play is set, portrayed by Nan Ehrbright, a native of Kansas.

With all the action taking place in the diner, there were several performers on stage simultaneously.

Conversation between actors directed the audience's attention to various places on the stage and frequently performers were left to their own devices.

No matter how long the action was elsewhere, veteran actress Susan Stevens appeared completely at ease, filling her silent moments with believable and commonplace actions.

Stevens played the nightclub singer, Cherie.

Rounding out the cast were actors Dick Ehrbright, Thomas Worrel and Bobby Cote.

Dottie Overal was the director.

Print ads inform professor feels

HATTIESBURG—People are so inundated with television advertising that they tend to become insensitive to it—insensitive to such an extent that 10 seconds later—they may be incapable of recalling anything about a commercial just seen.

TV advertisers are aware of this and resort to the devices of fear, sex and humor to get attention, according to Dr. Jack C. Wimberly, professor of economics at USM.

"At the same time, we may exert considerable effort voluntarily leaving through written advertisements," he feels.

"If we are willing to do this, why hasn't some type of all-advertising national television network developed?" Wimberly questions.

There are two more or less distinct types of advertising. One is purely promotional while the other is informative.

Promotional advertising, characterized by TV and slick magazines, doesn't tell the price, quantity available, and often not even the name and location of the seller. It is pure image that is being promoted.

Informative advertising, typically in the form of local print, does pretty much what the term implies—it informs the prospective buyer. It usually tells him what is available, where it is available, who is offering to sell and what the price is. A prospective buyer who fails to take advantage of such information is likely to be the loser.

characteristic of second quarter hot-shooting by the Rockchaws. SSC went to the free-throw line 16 times in this period, with YaSin Shabazz making six out of six, and Steve Montagnet hitting five out of eight.

The Rocks played aggressive team defense in the second half, usually giving the Eagles only one shot at the goal.

With Montagnet and John Kellar rebounding, the Rockchaws were able to put their running game in high gear, not allowing St. John to execute any defensive strategy.

The first half ended with St. Stanislaus enjoying a 37-23 lead, permitting St. John only nine successful field goals.

Shabazz had 14 points by halftime, while Montagnet and guard Josh Bowles followed with seven and six points, respectively.

The Rocks outscored the Eagles 17-12 in the third quarter to increase their lead to 54-34 by the end of the period.

SSC's hustling defense forced numerous St. John turnovers, and the Eagles had to take long shots from the perimeter.

At this point in the game, Coach Genin freely substituted. Forward Shane Sigworth led the rebounding effort, and Robert Brown netted six quick points as the Rocks continued to pull away from their opponents.

With a little over six minutes to

Perhaps the most promising aspect for St. Stanislaus fans watching the Rockchaw basketball squad easily handle St. John last Friday night was the way in which the Rocks displayed a unified team effort in securing a 72-50 victory.

The Rocks outplayed the Eagles in every phase of the contest, showing good, solid fundamentals in hitting the open man, aggressive defense, team hustle and intensity throughout four quarters of play.

It was the first win of the young season for Coach Chuck Genin's Rockchaws, who displayed a great deal of confidence throughout the game.

"It was the type of game that you hate to see end. We were very pleased with our performance," Assistant Coach Jerry Spell said.

Early in the first quarter the Rocks jumped out to a 13-4 lead, only to have Coach Doug Bremencamp's Eagles score eight unanswered points to pull to within one point.

When the first quarter ended SSC lead 15-12, with the momentum appearing to have swung back to St. John.

Whatever the SSC coaches told the squad at the end of the quarter worked, as the Rocks broke the game wide open midway through the second period and increased their lead to 33-19.

Center John Keller's nice jump shot from inside the lane was play, the Rocks enjoyed a comfortable 59-34 margin.

Helping Sigworth and Brown in the scoring department were John Winters, Joe Welsh and Carter Stewart.

Throughout the contest St. John attempted to press the Rockchaws, but had little success.

The Eagles made a late, 16-point surge to bring the final score to SSC 72, St. John 50.

"We have improved in all phases of our game," stated Coach Genin. "I'm particularly pleased we have cut down our turnovers from 23 to 12."

"I also liked our rebounding effort," continued Coach Genin, "but we still have a long way to go."

American Education Week should be special time

Last week we celebrated American Education Week, a nationwide celebration of the good work that occurs in our public schools. I issued a proclamation naming the week in honor of our educators and their efforts.

During this week, a series of events occurred that highlighted the importance of education to the State of Mississippi.

First, I presented the Executive Budget for FY88 to the Legislature. This budget sets education as our highest priority in state government. More than 64 percent of our Executive Budget is earmarked for education. In addition, I noted in our budget that if additional funds are available above the present budget estimate, I would recommend that those funds be used for several essential state needs, including universities and junior colleges.

Also in education, the Executive Budget includes additional funding for textbooks, a dire need for our Mississippi schools, and for the $1,000 teacher pay raise authorized by the Legislature.

All these recommendations point out the fact that education is a priority for this administration.

The second action during American Education Week that focused on education's importance in our state and nation was the release of the Commission on the Future of the South's report during the meeting of the Southern Growth Policies Board, which I attended in Little Rock, Ark.

This report points out the importance of continued work by states in the area of education reform. It also emphasizes the need to develop strong adult literacy programs. We in Mississippi are committed to both these programs.

As the first state with a massive education reform program, we have worked diligently to fund and implement that program. In addition, we have established the Governor's Task Force on the Adult Learner and hosted the Governor's Conference on Adult Literacy.

Literacy in Mississippi will receive another boost with the dedication of a literacy center of the Tupelo campus of Itawamba Junior College, a combined effort of the community and the public and private sectors.

In addition to all these activities during American Education Week, our State College Board was also discussing ways of improving higher education in Mississippi through restructuring our universities. Their discussions are a needed effort at streamlining our higher education system.

All these activities, ironically during this very special commemorative week, point out that Mississippians are taking many actions to continue improving education in our state. We know that education and economic development are the cornerstones for progress.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Word of juvenile questioned as basis for arrest

Nov. 20, 1988

Dear Sir:

Recently I was arrested on the word of a juvenile with no evidence other than his word.

I was not questioned by anyone prior to the arrest, nor did his mother attempt to get my side of the story before she rushed to press charges.

I had to put up $227 bond to stay out of jail. This is innocent until proven guilty.

The arresting officers were very polite, I blame some person(s) higher up for letting this happen. If I was any kind of a wheel around here, this wouldn't have happened.

Equal justice for all under law is a nice sentiment, but not a reality—money talks, so does position, power, and influence. This court case is still pending.

Sincerely,
Eric Flack

This is to inform our Coast residents that the Gulf Coast Society for Retarded Citizens has no affiliation with this organization, and, as director, I contacted the State Executive Director in Jackson and requested that this solicitation be stopped immediately. We receive no benefits or services from this organization.

The Gulf Coast Society for Retarded Citizens is currently preparing to launch its annual membership drive for individuals, clubs, and businesses to affiliate themselves with us.

Since 1959 the Society for Retarded Citizens has been dedicated to making a better quality of life for the mentally and/or physically handicapped babies, youths, and adults along the Gulf Coast.

The Society has sponsored summer camps for 28 years, it has worked for passage of the bond issue for the Harrison County Training Center for Exceptional Children, has helped build the Cheshire Group Home, has sponsored an Adult Activity Center, and has run a pre-school (now called PEEP), which serves infants through age three who are physically and/or mentally handicapped.

The Society is proud of what this organization has accomplished with the generous support of individuals, clubs, and businesses in the community, yet is humbled to think of the still unmet needs—one is assistance to young adults, bridging the wide gap between school and the world of work. These individuals need improved training facilities, job placement, and additional group homes.

Tax-deductible memberships and/or donations can make all of these services a reality. Also every dollar is used here on the Coast.

Tidelands Act inequities the purview of Congress

November 13, 1986

The Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis, Miss.

The Tidelands Act. What effect does it have upon our local economy?

When a parcel of land and the improvements there-on can be used as collateral to act as security for a mortgage loan there is no problem.

When conditions are otherwise there is a serious problem.

"The Tidelands were given to the several states to be held in trust for the public." Act of Congress.

"No state has the authority to con-vay out of itself any part of the tidelands." Supreme Court ruling.

The foregoing information was a part of a conversation with Mr. Heber Lader then Secretary of State more than thirty years ago shortly after I had been requested to make a survey of lands which I knew were affected by tidal action.

Using this information as a guideline I was able to determine which surveys I would make or would not make protecting myself against liability.

Any Act of Congress can at a later time be amended or made null and void by an Act of Congress.

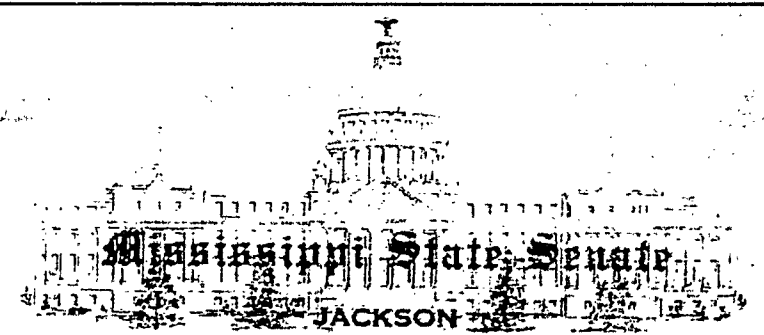

Therein lies the solution of any problem that might obtain for those adversely affected by the Tidelands Act.

How this can be effected I have my own ideas, others have other ideas. One thing is certain, it can be done, it will be done because it must be done.

How long a period of time it will take depends on the efforts of those adversely affected.

That in a nut shell is just about the limit of my knowledge of the subject. It is unfortunate that sometimes we tend to go beyond our limits.

State Senator Jack Gordon of Okolona is prefilling a bill to repeal the teacher "merit pay" plan which required public school teachers to satisfactorily pass an evaluation in order to receive salary increases beginning with the 1987-88 school year.

When the Legislature passed a three-year teacher pay raise in the 1985 Session, it granted $2,400 for the 1985-86 school year, $1,000 for the 1986-87 school year, and $1,000 for the 1987-88 school year with the last $1,000 tied to a personnel appraisal system to be developed by the State Board of Education.

"My objection to the concept of merit pay for teachers has long been a matter of record," Gordon said. In September 1982, immediately prior to the passage of the Education Reform Act, Gordon issued the following statement as part of the Report of the Senate Ad Hoc Committee on Education:

"I am opposed to the Committee's recommendation that a 'variable' or 'merit' pay plan be developed for school teachers. Teacher salaries have historically been so low in Mississippi (and other states in the Southeastern region), that attention in this area has been focused on teacher survival, not merit.

"With Mississippi teacher salaries still on the bottom of the scale, I feel that the timing is not right for an experiment with the concept of merit pay."

"Additionally, I have grave reservations in that there is no working definition of 'merit pay,' because meritorious performance by school teachers is a subjective determination which cannot be objectively evaluated for salary purposes."

"I accepted the concept of merit pay in the spirit of compromise in order that education reform might take place. However, I still believe that we need to make our priority bringing up the base salary of our teachers," Gordon said.

"Also, the paperwork involved in the evaluation process takes valuable time away from teaching and the students are the ones who suffer."

Gordon said that it is too late to stop the evaluation process currently underway, but his bill would prohibit the evaluation from being used to award raises. He said that it is his plan to give every teacher the $1,000 raise next year in order to raise the base salary.

CIRCUMCISION

Q: My daughter is eight months pregnant and wonders if she has a son whether he should be circumcised or not. Is it necessary for boys to be circumcised?

A: Most male infants born in the U.S. today are circumcised, but two professional medical associations have declared the procedure not medically necessary.

A committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics studied the issue in 1975, and concluded no medical data indicates that all males must be circumcised. The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists publicly supported this decision in 1978.

Circumcision involves the removal of the foreskin or prepuce that covers the glans or head of the penis. An estimated 85 percent of the male infants in this country will be circumcised in 1988. The numbers in other countries are significantly lower.

Religious, cultural and medical reasons are given for performing circumcision. A symbolic ritual in both Jewish and Moslem religions, circumcision is performed when the infant is several days old. Circumcision also may be a medical necessity in unusual cases when the foreskin impedes the flow of urine by closing off the opening of the urethra.

One of the reasons people think circumcision is absolutely necessary in all cases is the perception that removal of the foreskin aids hygiene.

Oil glands of the penis produce a substance that has been thought to be carcinogenic, and mothers of uncircumcised babies have been told to regularly wash under the foreskin to protect the penis from a build-up of the oils. This information now is being discounted as the penis's own cleansing abilities are realized.

Medical problems involving the foreskin do appear later in life in some cases. The prepuce, for example, may not be fully developed by birth, but will most likely do so within the first two years of life.

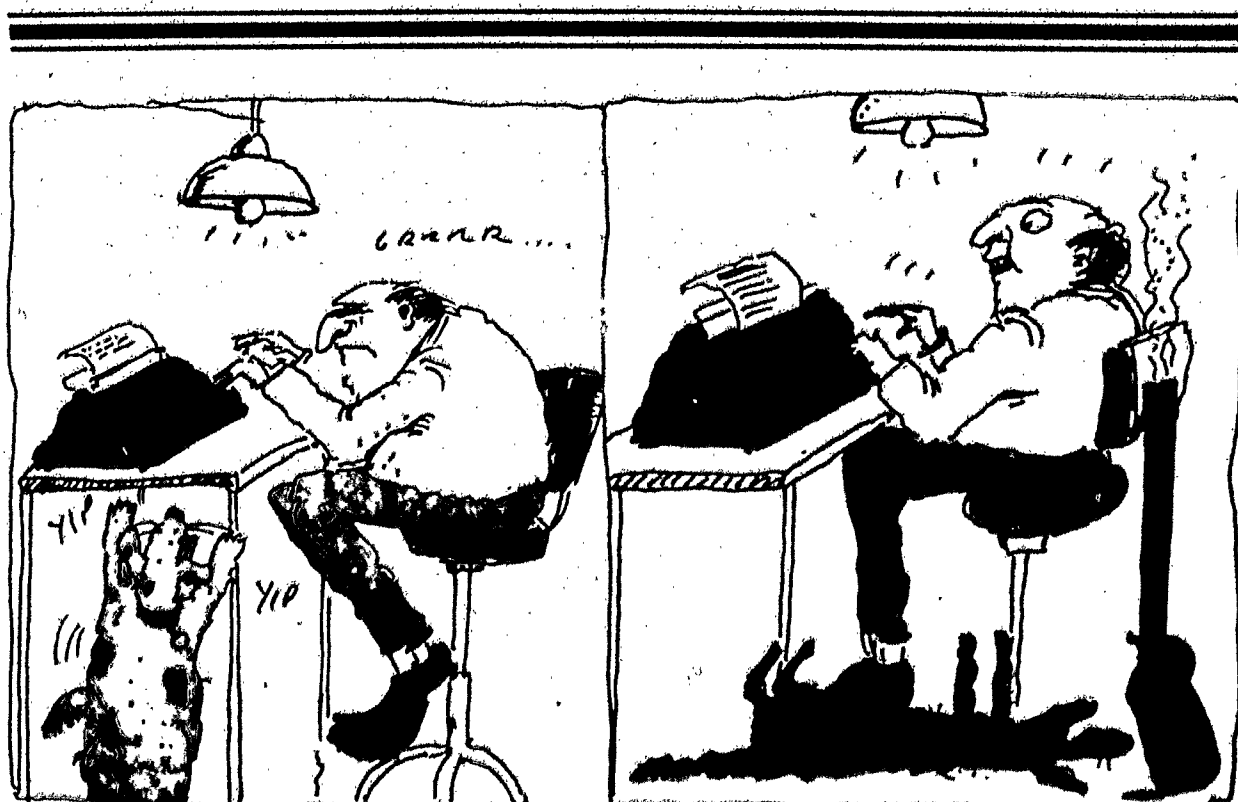

With the uncircumcised newborn, this lack of development may make cleaning under the foreskin difficult because the tissue is not easily folded or slid back. The prepuce remains incompletely developed at adolescence in some cases and is still partially attached to its underlying tissues. This problem is commonly alleviated by minor surgery.

Though the glans of the penis has self-cleaning properties, adolescent boys should be taught to carefully clean under the foreskin when bathing. Medical evidence shows an increased incidence of penile cancer can result from poor hygiene. The occurrence also is high for circumcised males who don't practice good hygiene.

Circumcision carries the risks of most relatively minor operations. The procedure is painful, even in newborn infants; so to reduce the pain during circumcision a local anesthesia may be used. Attendant risks are involved in the procedure itself, the most common of which is infection.

Occasionally, circumcised infants develop tiny, temporary ulcerations of the glans of the penis from rubbing against wet diapers. The foreskin, which covers the glans can protect against such irritations.

Studies show that genital herpes is more common among uncircumcised men. No data exists, however, to support the notion that these men are more likely to expose women to genital herpes, thus to a known increased risk of cervical cancer, than circumcised men who are infected with the virus.

Thanksgiving is deadliest highway holiday

JACKSON—Of the six major holiday periods, Thanksgiving is by far the deadliest for producing highway fatalities according to statistics compiled by the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol.

Records show that during Thanksgiving observances for the 20-year period from 1966 through 1985, 242 people died in automobile crashes. The next deadliest holidays for traffic deaths during that 20-year period are Christmas with 222, followed by the fourth of July with 221, Labor Day with 218, Memorial Day with 189, and New Years with 145.

"What concerns us even more is the fact that 1986 will be a record-breaking year for traffic deaths in Mississippi if fatal highway crashes continue to occur at the same rate they have thus far," James L. Roberts Jr., commissioner of public safety, said.

Roberts is referring to the 19 percent increase in statewide automobile fatalities from Jan. 1 through Nov. 19, 1986, compared to the same period in 1985. The number of deaths taking place on city street is up by seven percent, by 14 percent on county roads, and by 28 percent of state and federal highways, which averages out to a 19 percent increase statewide.

From Jan. 1 through Nov. 19, 1986, 682 people have died in automobile crashes compared to 571 during the same period in 1985.

"If deaths resulting from automobile crashes continue to increase at 19 percent until the end of this year, 791 people will die. We have not had highway deaths to reach 800 since 1973, before the 55 mile per hour national maximum speed law became effective," the commissioner said.

Col. D. D. Cvitanovich, patrol chief, said the increase in traffic deaths on Highway Patrol governed roads is the highest of the three categories captured in statistical data.

"While a 28 percent increase in traffic deaths on Highway Patrol roads appears to be excessively high, in mid-July there was a 42 percent increase on these same roads," Cvitanovich said.

"Even with fewer troopers we have attempted to be more visible."

"Drivers must assume some responsibility for their own safety. Unless caused by a mechanical malfunction of an automobile, accidents are caused by inattentive, discourteous or law breaking motorists. Someone is responsible," Cvitanovich said.

"Each of us must drive defensively so we do not become the victim of someone else's carelessness," he added.

Data from a report prepared by the Mississippi State Highway Department, which lists estimated vehicle miles of travel in Mississippi by month, show a 3.85 percent increase in miles traveled from January through September 1986 compared to miles traveled from January through September 1985.

Lt. Col. Don O'Cain, assistant patrol chief, said the 3.85 percent increase in miles traveled represents 551-million more miles that motorists have driven this year over last.

"While we are not attempting to justify the high number of highway deaths, because even one life lost in an automobile crash is one too many, we do believe that if more people are traveling more miles the logical result, unfortunately, is more crashes," O'Cain said.

"There are also more licensed drivers. Our records show that the total number of Mississippians licensed to drive has risen from 1.805 million to 1.835 million for an increase of 30,000."

"However, we also believe that many lives would be saved and fewer serious injuries would result if more drivers and occupants would wear seat belts," the assistant chief said.

O'Cain said that almost all passenger cars are equipped with seat belts.

According to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration studies, seat belts are 50 to 65 percent effective in preventing fatalities and injuries.

NSTL, Jackson State University enter joint research project

The NASA National Space Technology Laboratories' Earth Resources Laboratory and Jackson State University have begun a three-year research project which will improve academic and research opportunities at the university while strengthening NASA's technology and science research capabilities.

The computer sciences-oriented project, which was initiated this month, will also develop a unique capability in spatial data management systems at Jackson State.

Project funding from NASA Headquarters for the first year amounts to $265,000.

As part of the project, members of NASA's professional staff will present seminars and workshops for faculty members and students at the university campus. Additional hands-on training will be provided at NSTL's computer center.

JSU is the sixth largest historically black university in the country and graduates more minority students in computer science than any other university in the U.S. NSTL's laboratory has a history of developing unique software in the field of image processing and has established itself as a leader in the NASA community in the design of spatial data management systems.

The computational capability of JSU and the image processing expertise at NSTL offer a unique opportunity to unite a NASA laboratory with a leading university in an area of technology development.

Principal investigators for the project are Rick Galle of NASA and Dr. Robert Leflore of Jackson State.

According to Galle, a spatial data management system is a computer-based subsystem which collects data from a variety of sources such as map structures and remote sensing instruments and then organizes the data in a form which provides quick access to the researcher. The system then allows the data to be processed in a manner consistent with requirements and then displayed in a desired format.

Spatial data management systems and related technologies are developing rapidly and will soon constitute one of the most important scientific uses of computers, according to Galle.

Through the project with NASA, JSU will benefit from the purchase of resources such as computer hardware and software. Also, students will receive financial assistance to aid in their pursuit of studies, and opportunities for entry into the professional world will be greatly enhanced. NASA anticipates an industrial partner will contribute to the project.

State launches 'Ambassador' program

Start-up of the 'Mississippi Ambassador Program' to aid the State's economic development efforts was announced by Governor Bill Allain and Jerry McDonald, Executive Director of the Mississippi Department of Economic Development at the November meeting of the Board of Economic Development.

The privately-funded promotional program is intended to improve the image Mississippians have of their State. "This program is intended to accentuate the positive," stated Jerry McDonald.

"We so often hear the negative side of what Mississippi has to offer that there is a tendency to not feel good about being a Mississippian. We felt it was necessary to launch a program where everyone could participate in promoting our positive attributes."

A Mississippi Ambassador will receive a fact card on significant people and occurrences in Mississippi, a program membership card and an official pin designed similar to the state seal. Board of Economic Development members will be the first to be inducted into the program.

"This will not be an elitist group," Governor Allain emphasized. "We plan to make every citizen a Mississippi Ambassador, aware of the good things happening in our State, so that he or she can spread the word."

Governor Allain explained that there will be no charge to become a Mississippi Ambassador but that to join one must sign a membership card and pledge to say only good things about the State.

Mississippians can make a difference in our State. They can buy Mississippi products, shop in Mississippi, help to create new industries and expand those already existing, spend tourism dollars in Mississippi and invite friends, relatives, conventions and associations to do the same, conduct promotional programs about Mississippi at the grassroots level, and, in general, express a positive attitude about Mississippi.

On Statehood Day, Wednesday, Dec. 10, Governor Allain will officially kick-off the Mississippi Ambassador Program.

The Mississippi Ambassador Program, is a permanent program with no projected ending date. Persons interested in additional information on the Mississippi Ambassador Program should contact: Mississippi Ambassador, Department of Economic Development, P.O. Box 440, Jackson, MS 39205.

Senior Citizen Happenings

FISH FRY

Don't forget the fish fry provided by K. C. Mitchell and his gang at Silver Creek Catfish House. This event is Monday, Nov. 24 at noon. The location is a little past the Annunciation Church on the Kiln-Delisle Road.

Our public officials will be serving!

Only the bus people will be served before noon, so please do not come early. This meal is for those 60+ years of age.

HOLIDAY HELP

We don't deliver meals-on-wheels to our clients on Thanksgiving Day or the day after. We do provide a turkey dinner on Wednesday and give them two cold packs with individual servings of food that need heating to have a hot dinner.

If you feel that you could provide one hot meal on either of these days to one client, please call our center and we will give you a name and address to deliver the meal. Our number is 467-8292.

We will have this same need the week of Christmas, Dec. 22 through 28 and New Year's Day.

Some of our clients have family that will be home and can and will provide for them, but some are alone and would appreciate a hot meal. If you would like to adopt a family to bring a small tree and a couple of presents to, we can arrange that too.

ID CARDS

We have the camera back now and can provide senior citizens with an ID card for riding the bus at a discount rate. You must be signed up with our program to obtain this card. To be eligible you must be 60+ and need transportation.

WHITE ELEPHANT

We do have a white elephant table at the office with items for a donation and a clothes rack for used clothes. Proceeds will go for snacks and supplies. Our books that are donated by Kmart are free.

Father A.C. Dennis KC Council

Father A.C. Dennis Council No. 7087, Knights of Columbus, Hwy 603, Kiln, served its annual senior citizens pre-Thanksgiving dinner Nov. 20 at 7 p.m. There were more than 125 senior citizens attending.

Mrs. Rebecca Cuevas, 87, was oldest lady and Mr. Nicklious Ladner, 94, the oldest man. They received gift certificates as the oldest attending. Games were played and gifts awarded. The Ladies auxiliary decorated the hall, prepared and served the food.

Ripe Olive Moussaka Goes Vegetarian

Eggplant, mushrooms, onions and potatoes are the basics in this recipe. The eggplant is cut into slices, brushed with butter, and baked in the oven until tender. While the eggplant cooks, there's plenty of time to make the tomato-based sauce studded with California ripe olives and accented with basil and oregano. The casserole is assembled by layering the eggplant with bread crumbs, the sauce, and sliced cooked potatoes as the recipe directs. The final step is pouring on a cheese sauce, and the dish is ready to bake in the oven.

Vegetarian Moussaka

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 eggplant (1 to 1-1/4 lb) | 1 can (8 oz) tomato sauce |
| 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted | 1/2 cup canned tomato puree |
| 1 medium onion, chopped | 1-1/2 teaspoons basil |
| 2 tablespoons vegetable oil | 1-1/2 teaspoons oregano |
| 1 tablespoon flour | 2 tablespoons dry bread crumbs |
| 1/4 lb mushrooms, sliced | 3 medium potatoes, cooked, peeled and sliced |
| 1 cup pitted California ripe olives, halved | White Sauce |

Cut eggplant into 1/4-inch slices and halve each slice. Place eggplant pieces in shallow baking dish and brush with half the melted butter. Turn and brush other side with remaining butter. Bake in 400°F. oven 20 minutes or until eggplant is tender. Sauté onions in oil until soft. Stir in flour then add mushrooms, olives, tomato sauce, tomato puree, basil and oregano. Heat, stirring, until it is thickened and comes to a boil. Layer half the eggplant in a 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with half the bread crumbs and then add half the olive sauce. Top with potato slices, remaining eggplant, bread crumbs and olive sauce. Top with White Sauce. Bake at 400°F. 40 minutes, or until hot throughout. Makes 4 servings.

WHITE SAUCE: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan. Blend in 2 tablespoons flour then whisk in 1-1/4 cups milk. Cook, stirring, over medium heat until sauce is thickened and comes to a boil. Stir in 3/4 cup grated Cheddar cheese. Stir in salt and pepper to taste.

Coast Episcopal youngsters plan Thanksgiving pageant

The Early Education Development Center of Coast Episcopal Schools in Bay St. Louis invite all parents and friends to join them for a reenactment of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving celebration on Wednesday, Nov. 28 at 10:30 a.m. in Virginia Hall of Christ Episcopal Church.

The kindergarten students will portray the Pilgrims who journeyed to America on the Mayflower, and the three- and four-year-olds will take the parts of the Indians who befriended the Pilgrims.

Costumes and decorations are made by the children in each class. The food for the feast will be cooked also by the children, with the three-year-olds cooking the turkey and cranberry sauce, the four-year-olds the cornbread, and the kindergarten making a fruit salad.

"This day is traditionally very special to the children of Coast Episcopal Schools as a means of sharing with their parents the meaning of Thanksgiving and all they have learned about this very unique and special holiday in America," said Mrs. Yvonne Williams, teacher.

The EEDC teachers at Coast Episcopal Schools are Mrs. Williams, three-year-olds; Mrs. Mary Psikogios, four-year-olds, and Mrs. Saralynn Barnes, kindergarten.

MHG to sponsor diabetes awareness event

A Diabetes Awareness program will be held Tuesday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the lobby of Memorial Hospital in Gulfport. The public is invited to attend this free event.

The program is being held in observance of National Diabetes Month. Booths will be set up with various health care professionals on hand to discuss the different aspects of diabetes.

These will include nurses, a pharmacist, a dietitian, a social worker, a physical therapist, and a child life specialist.

Free blood glucose tests will be done on request. This is a screening procedure only and not a diagnostic test.

Numerous pamphlets and brochures will also be available free of charge. Videos will be available for the public to view and check out for home use. The videos cover various aspects of diabetes and are approximately 20 minutes long.

A $5 deposit will be required when the video is checked out; however, the deposit will be returned when the tape is returned.

Diabetes is a disorder in which the body does not make proper use of sugar. More than 10 million persons in the United States have diabetes, and it is estimated that another 5 million are unaware that they have diabetes.

At the present time, there is no cure for diabetes, but it can be controlled through diet, exercise, and medication.

For more information on the Diabetes Awareness Program, call 865-3602.

Safety tips offered for holiday hosts

Tips to prevent holiday parties from leading to serious injuries or deaths on highways, streets and roads have been offered by the Highway Safety Division, Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs. They are:

1. If alcoholic beverages are served, also serve high protein and carbohydrate foods such as cheese and meats.

2. If alcoholic punch is served, use a noncarbonated base such as fruit juice.

3. Have nonalcoholic beverages available for guests who may not want to drink alcoholic beverages.

4. Have several standard measures, such as jiggers or self-measuring one-ounce bottle spoons at the bar to mix drinks and thus decrease the likelihood of guests drinking excessively.

5. Because some guests may not wish to appear rude and will accept drinks they do not want, don't force drinks on guests or rush to refill their glasses when empty.

6. If a guest is drinking too much, engage the person in conversation to slow down the drinking and offer the individual some high protein food.

7. Approximately two hours before the party is over, stop serving alcohol, and serve coffee or other nonalcoholic beverages as well as food.

Free recipes for nonalcoholic party beverages may be obtained from the Highway Safety Division by calling 949-2225.

News from the Church of St. Ann

A thought for meditation from our pastor Father Lambert Stack, ST.
"If I could only see the road you came, with all the jagged rocks and crooked ways,
"I might more kindly think of your misstep, and only praise."
—Wings of Silver

Father Stack, Christmas Boutique chairlady, Mrs. Christian Neubig and her co-workers would like to thank everyone who helped make this year's sale so successful.

Mass Thanksgiving Day will be 8:30 a.m., St. Ann Church, Clermont Harbor.
Weekdays mass 8:30 a.m., St. Ann Church.
Saturday Vigil mass 4 p.m., St. Ann.
Sunday mass 9:30 a.m., St. Ann.
Sunday mass 8 a.m., St. John, Lakeshore.

ETV Briefs

TCHAIKOVSKY
A special program featuring highlights from the VIII International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow will be broadcast at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 3, on Mississippi ETV and Public Radio in Mississippi (PRM).

Every four years, more than 300 musicians, classically trained in cello, piano, violin and voice, come to Moscow to compete for top honors in one of the world's most prestigious contests: the International Tchaikovsky Competition.

The program follows Barry Douglas, a 26-year-old pianist from Ireland, as he becomes the first non-Soviet to be the sole winner of the piano competition in nearly 30 years, and highlights Ilya Kaler of the Soviet Union and Raphael Oleg of France as they go on to share the first-place prize in the violin category.

FANTASY & REALITY
A lonely insurance agent has dinner in a coffee shop, and his interest in his waitress quickly turns into a driving obsession in "Landscape with Waitress" at 10:30 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 3, on Mississippi ETV.

In this adaptation of the play by Robert Pine, the man's waitress catches his eye and imagination, and soon her every word and gesture are exhaustively analyzed for clues. After fantasizing various identities for her, he finds himself in an encounter with someone he never imagined: the waitress herself. John Rothman and Nurit Koppel star.
